Bradley Angle's Sold-Out GlamHer Raises over $220,000 for Survivors of Domestic Violence

PORTLAND, ORE – May 22, 2017 – GlamHer, Bradley Angle's signature event, reached for the stars and celebrated galactic ideas at this year's science fiction-inspired ball. Sold out two weeks in advance, the fundraiser hosted 460 guests at the posh Nines Hotel in downtown Portland.

Drag legend, Poison Waters, guided the electric crowd through an entertaining evening with performances and her entourage of Queens. Guests opened their hearts and wallets raising over $220,000 for survivors of domestic violence. The most spirited live auction item was a Drag Queen Makeover by Poison Waters and the rare chance to perform in Super!Drag at the Darcelle XV Showplace alongside legendary Queen Darcelle.

"This was our most successful GlamHer to date. We are simply overwhelmed by the generosity of this community. The funds raised will go directly to programs that support survivors of domestic violence, including LGBTQ specific services and support groups and culturally responsive services for survivors in Black/African American/African communities through the Healing Roots Program." - Jackie Yerby, Executive Director.

Bradley Angle is grateful to have generous community sponsors support GlamHer and share its vision to create communities free from domestic violence and oppression where loving, compassionate and equitable relationships exist for all people.

About Bradley Angle

Founded in 1975, Bradley Angle is one of the first emergency shelters in the country and the first domestic violence shelter on the West Coast. The Portland-based organization provides culturally responsive community based support services to all survivors of domestic and sexual violence. Our vision is to build communities that are free from violence and oppression—where loving, compassionate and equitable relationships exist for all people. Bradley Angle programs include: emergency shelter and services, housing assistance, youth & family services, LGBTQ specific services and support groups, culturally responsive services for survivors in Black/African American/African communities through the Healing Roots Program, and an Economic Empowerment Program. The organization serves more than 800 adults and children a year. Visit www.bradleyangle.org for more information.
